FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 28, 1921.

A GRAVE EMERGENCY CONFRONTING CONNELLSVILLE.

The efforts the Baltimore & Ohio Veterans Association is making through P. J. Harrigan, president of the Connellsville division, and James Wardley, grand secretary of the organization, to secure a larger patronage for the railroad by Connellsville shippers, when rightly understood, is an appeal in behalf of Connellsville and every business, industry and citizen in the city and its environs.

The importance of Connellsville to the Baltimore & Ohio railroad has been proven by the things the management has done in the direction of making this a divisional terminal. No argument should be needed, therefore, to convince any citizen that if Connellsville loses its prestige, which a divisional terminal is prepped to have as a traffic producing center, we cannot hope or expect to receive very much consideration or be granted very many favors which, to the Baltimore & Ohio management, seem to be out of proportion to the city's value to the railroad.

Connellsville is now confronted with such a grave emergency. Railroads estimate the importance of a town on their lines by the volume of business it provides, just as a merchant values a customer by the volume of his or her purchases. That is a recognized principle of business applying to railroads the same as it does to merchandising, banking or other commercial relations. By this standard Connellsville is falling short of the expectations of the Baltimore & Ohio management. Not entirely because of the indifference or neglect of our shippers, but in large part as one of the consequences of the government control of operation during the war.

The Railroad Administration having diverted practically all classes of freight except coal and munitions from the road during the strenuous days of the war, many shippers have adhered to the habit of shipping by other roads since the cessation of hostilities and the return to private control of operation. Maintaining the Baltimore & Ohio, in common with other roads, has lost its government business, but unlike its competitors it is also without the volume of business it had enjoyed before the diversion by the Railroad Administration became effective. Much of this business has been developed after years of effort by the management, and some of it is permanently lost to the railroad. A very considerable part can be regained particularly in Connellsville, the railroad's "hub" in the people of the city's attitude towards the situation and the way they fight with it.

We can't say we are in sympathy with the proposition to do away with the railroads. There are reckless automobiles and drivers enough to fill every one of them.

asking that the Baltimore & Ohio be given business commensurate with its importance as a city institution and the character of its service under private control.

Pittsburg shipments are now handled on express schedules. Shipments destined for Connellsville received in Pittsburg by 4 o'clock in the afternoon are delivered there early the next morning. Through car service has been inaugurated between Baltimore and this city which lands goods here the day following shipment while the same kind of service is in effect between Philadelphia and Connellsville.

Because of the fact that it employs more persons and at better wages than any institution in Connellsville its business interests are reciprocal. This also may be applied to individuals who order merchandise out of the city and can have it routed over the Baltimore & Ohio. The appeal is made to them to help the good cause along.

The members of the booster committee feel that they are not "knocking" any other road but are simply asking what they think is justice belongs to the Baltimore & Ohio.

COMMERCIAL LIFE OF M'KEESPORT GAS FIELD

Natural Gas company.

Within a very short period drills were being placed in all parts of the field so that at the end of the pool's first year of commercial life there were 167 producing wells and a total of 528 known wells completed to the Speckley sand. The daily production from the 167 wells on August 29, 1920, was 17,000,000 cubic feet or an average of 101,800 cubic feet for each producing well. The pool registered during the first year a total of 16,255,100,000 cubic feet of gas. Of this total the Foster well had produced 3,720,521,000 cubic feet of gas or a little more than one third of the total production.

On September 30, 1920, 145 wells in the field were producing 12,600,000 cubic feet of gas per day or 68,000 cubic feet per well. The total production of the pool to that date was 15,758,100,000 cubic feet and in a month the daily production of the field had decreased more than 4,000,000 cubic feet. Up to September 30, 1920, some 323 wells had been recorded as dry or having ceased to produce gas. Of the original producers 53 wells had been exhausted. At that time, too, 400 wells were either being drilled, abandoned or the claims were being forsaken.

Records of the Department of Internal Affairs for January 1, 1921, show that 180 wells were still producing gas in the pool on that day and that 141 wells in which drilling had been completed were dry. The production for the month of December, 1920, was 243,311,000 cubic feet of gas or an average of 9,460,000 cubic feet daily. 3,000,000 cubic feet less than the daily production on September 30, 1920. On January 1, this year, the McKeesport pool had produced from its beginning a total of 16,757,650,000 cubic feet. The Foster well has produced in that time 5,724,028,000 cubic feet or 34.1 per cent of the total.

In preliminary reports on the McKeesport gas pool made more than a year ago by the Department of Internal Affairs, it was estimated that the commercial life of the field would be ended within a period extending from "one to two years and possibly a little longer." Estimates made in the preliminary reports likewise indicated that, in the opinion of members of the survey bureau, the pool, at the beginning, did not contain over 15 to 20 billion cubic feet of gas. From the reports since received, at the field and the studies which have been made, it is now estimated that the commercial life of the pool will end about June 1, 1921, and that the total production to that time will be about 18,000,000,000 cubic feet.

CERTAIN RELIEF FROM BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

Simple Home Treatment Makes Breathing Easy.

Just because you have the "dry tickle" in your throat, or a cough, or a wheeze, or a difficult breathing, or a miserable asthma, do not think you have to stay this way long.

We know you will breathe clearly and easily again by using this simple treatment known as Oxidase, the prescription of a Worcester, Mass., physician.

For any form of asthma where the bronchial tubes are irritated, the irritating action is really wonderful. Sufferers who can't breathe at night and who cough and gasp for breath will appreciate the relief and comfort Oxidase gives.

Oxidase is a tablet made from essential oils which, when used, dissolves in the mouth, almost immediately soothes the irritation, clears out the choked-up passages and enables the sufferer to breathe easily and get a real comfortable night's sleep.

It is sold by A. C. Clark and leading druggists who agree to return the full purchase price of the first package to any sufferer who does not obtain satisfactory relief. Asthmatic sufferers should give Oxidase a trial. It is harmless and inexpensive. Adv.

Coal Production Brings Weekly Total Below 30,000,000 Tons.

According to the United States Geological Survey, the production of soft coal continued to decline during the week ended January 15. Labor and coal supply were sufficient, and the chief factor limiting output was lack of orders.

The total production, including lignite, coal coked at the mine, mine coal, and sales of local grade, is estimated at 9,937,000 tons, a decrease of 868,000 tons when compared with the week preceding.

PITTSBURG MAN GETS SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE

Starlet Only Weighed 115 Pounds When He began Taking Tanlac—Now Weighs 155—Believes It Saved His Life.

"I got the surprise of my life when I stepped on the scales and found I had actually gained 37 pounds in weight," said Thomas J. Sterritt, of 1125 Schumfeld St., Pittsburgh, Pa., stationary engineer at the Consisto building.

"I honestly believe Tanlac saved my life, for when I began taking it I was about down and out and didn't know which way to turn for relief. I don't believe anybody ever suffered worse from stomach trouble than I did for six years. Almost as soon as I began taking a meal my troubles began and I had such smothering sensations and such awful cramping pains around my chest it just seemed like I had to fight for my life. There were times when I fainted dead away. This happened several times when I was at my work in the Consisto building.

"My whole nervous system seemed to be shattered and it was mighty little sleep I got at night. I felt off in weight so fast it was enough to alarm anybody. In fact I lost 30 pounds in just a short time. My friends were shocked to see how thin and how I was looking, and some of them told me I looked like I had been a sick man for years.

"Well, sir, a friend where I work put me on to Tanlac, and it was simply astonishing how I took hold of my troubles. The first bottle made such a change in me my friends could hardly believe me when I told them what had done the work.

"Honestly, I never had such an appetite in my life as I have these days and what is more, I eat anything in the world I want and nothing ever hurts me. I have gained back all the weight I lost and more besides, and am as good a man physically as I ever was. Tanlac has them all beat and I can't fully express my gratitude for what it has done for me. There's nothing too good I can say about it."

Tanlac is sold in Connelville by all leading druggists.—Adv.

GOVERNOR SPROUL'S ENFORCEMENT IDEAS TO BE CARRIED OUT

Will Be Embodied in Bill Amending the Brooks High License Law.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 28.—"Nonintoxicating alcoholic drinks" law, when passed, would not be as drastic as that which is a part of the Brooks law. The latter calls for a fine of from $500 to $5,000 and imprisonment of not less than 30 days. The court has no discretion, and fine and imprisonment both are given the guilty.

So that every candy store, confectionery, grocers, bankers and storekeepers of all kinds cannot engage in the "nonintoxicating alcoholic" drink business the state administration will have a strong bill regulating that business. Those getting to sell the aforementioned drinks will have to go before the court and submit to an examination, and if found guilty will be given the license, which will cost much less in Pittsburgh than the present $1,000 fee. There will be careful supervision of the business provided for, and also penalties exacted for infraction.

The state program will be to join in the full enforcement of the Volstead act and in addition regulate and license the sellers of so-called "soft" drinks. It is definitely known that the state has word of a number of new preparations, which, if added in tablet of other form to alcoholic drinks of below the Volstead percentage will almost immediately give these drinks a virile and wallop as of other and "wetter" years.

Governor Sproul declared in his Pittsburgh speech for the repeal of the Brooks law. At that time he said nothing about regulating the sale of "nonintoxicating alcoholic" drinks. Now he has taken a strong stand in that direction, and is said to have indicated his thoughts to Attorney General George E. Allen, who will likely prepare all the proposed legislation along this and other lines.

It was also stated here today that the penalties for infraction of the Brooks high license law without any change to regulate soft drink emporiums which will sell mixtures, nonintoxicating, yet containing the "makings" of intoxicating liquors, would be a crime against the state.

SMITHFIELD G. A. R. POST SO THINNED MILITARY FUNERAL FOR MEMBER IS IMPOSSIBLE

Special to The Courier.

SMITHFIELD, Jan. 26.—James F. Porter died at his home at Springhill, Furnace Sunday, January 23, and was buried in the Slavic cemetery at Chest Neck Tuesday. He was 76 years old. During the Civil War he served for 35 months as a member of Company I, 14th West Virginia Infantry.

He was an honored member of Jerry Jones Post No. 517, G. A. R., of Smithfield. Because of the ranks of the post have become so depleted by death and the infirmities of those living, there was not a sufficient number of veterans present to accord Mr. Porter a military funeral. He was a director of the First National bank of Smithfield, which was closed Tuesday as a mark of respect. His is the third death among the grievously stricken organization of the bank in 1921. D. E. Morgan and Charles C. Woodruff preceded him. Deceased left a valuable estate in real and personal property.

continued to be about $30,000, the bulk of which he left to his two sons. Smithfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., presented a flag to the borough schools Tuesday evening, the exercises taking place in the Methodist Episcopal church. A pleasing program was carried out by the school. Prof. Albert Johnson, principal of the York Run school, made the presentation in behalf of the order, of which he is a member. H. C. Ellis, principal of the borough schools, responded. The Smithfield orchestra rendered several pleasing selections. Prof. W. H. Abraham presiding at the piano.

Miss Catherine Jones a teacher in the borough schools, is confined to her home with an attack of grip.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Rankin and Mrs. Charles Hain, their daughter, were Unadunton shoppers Wednesday.

Albert Conn of Baltimore was a borough business visitor Wednesday.

REMOVAL OF CHESTNUT FROM FORBES RESERVE, BEARER'S PROPOSAL

Member Official of Relief That It Is Advisable to Use Blight-Stricken Timber White of Value.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 27.—Extensive improvements in the Forbes state forest are contemplated this year by District Forester V. M. Bearer of Ligonier. His budget for 1921, which he submitted this week to the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry calls for the extension of 60,000 feet of forest roads, 16,000 feet of cleared safety strips and 5,000 feet of forest trails.

Forester Bearer hopes to construct a telephone line from the main forest line to the forest for observation tower on Bald Knob. His planting plans call for setting out 10,000 white pine seedlings and 15,000 Norway spruce seedlings in the forest. It is estimated that this plantation will cover about 26 acres.

Forester Bearer requested authority to dispose of all chestnut trees, live and dead, on at least 15 acres of the forest. He believes it is advisable to cut the chestnut so that much of the timber may be utilized before it is killed by the blight and deteriorates so that it is valueless.

BILLY BISHOP WRITES OF TRIP THROUGH SOUTH

Members of Connellsville Motor Party Now Enjoying Florida Breezes.

REMAIN UNTIL SPRING

Good Roads and Bad, Much of the Latter. Encountered in Journey of 2,050 Miles Which Includes Side Trip to Big Game Preserve in Alabama.

Billy Bishop's story of his trip from Connellsville to Miami, Fla., by automobile in company with his aunt, Mrs.
Catherine J. Bishop, and niece, Virginia Jane, is related in the following, beginning with the departure of the party last fall:

"From Connellsville we drove to Uniontown where we picked up Mrs.
George Stillwell of Carmichaels, she going with us to Calhoun, Ala. It was raining hard when we started, up the mountain. Stewart Stillwell, wanting to see his mother safely off, drove ahead of us to the top of the mountain. On the way we ran into a blinding snow storm. At several places we encountered snow two to four inches deep. Reaching Frostburg it was like summer again.

"At Cumberland we stayed over night with Mr. and Mrs. Fay, who had just removed from Connellsville. Next morning we drove to Huncuck and then to Hagerstown where we spent a couple of days with old Mother Troxel, as everybody calls her. Her father and mother were connected with the army of the famous John Brown bell from an arsenal of the Confederate army which was kept hidden until the close of the war. We also called on Mr. and Mrs. Etter, old Connellsville folks. Mr. Etter was once in charge of the Royal Woolen Mills store in Connellsville.

"I had a talk with the Hagerstown fair board and now think that the Connellsville Military band will play at the fair for a week next fall.

"Arriving in Washington we spent several days sight-seeing. Mrs. Stillwell being an old friend of Senator Cummings we spent a day with the senator and his sisters at their apartments in Vermont avenue.

"We inquired the prices of rooms at hotels for the week of March 4. The best was $100, but four could use a room.

"Leaving Washington we drove to Spotsylvania Court House and then to Richmond. At the latter place we spent several days. We crossed the James river to Petersburg, visiting in turn Dinwiddie and Emporia. Passing through the state of Virginia we entered North Carolina. We spent a couple of days seeing Raleigh. At Southern Pines we nearly lost our automobile. We took it from the garage to the hotel at 7 o'clock in the morning.

"At 8 o'clock the garage was burnt.
"Passing through South Carolina
we entered Georgia, going to Augusta where we spent several days. At Macon you can take your choice of three routes south. One is by way of Waycross and Jacksonville, Fla.; another by way of Valdosta, Ga., and Milledgeville, Ga. But we wanted to go to Calhoun, Ala., so we could not take either. We drove to Bryan, to Fort Valley, then to Nashville and Montgomery, and finally to Okefenokee, named in honor of an English general and founder of the state of Georgia. Here we had dinner at the famous Joe Brown's tea room, another tourist holdout. Leaving Georgia we drove to Montgomery, the capital of Alabama, where we spent several days. Our next stop was Calhoun, Ala., where the famous Bell game preserve of 16,000 acres is located. Here live Mr. and Mrs. W. H.
Beazell. Mrs. Beazell is a daughter of Mrs. Stillwell. Here we found hunting good—all kinds of game, including turkeys, squirrels, rabbits and quail.
We had game of some kind every meal. The preserve being closed for five years. It was great sport for us.
Not tired of hunting nor of eating quail potpie but afraid of the winter ruins, we left our friend, Mrs. Stillwell here and drove back to the Georgia state line, stopping at Thomasville. Here we had to lay up for the night on account of rain. Then to Quitman, the last town in Georgia.

"And finally Palm Beach. It is a wonderful place, with one of the fine-est beaches in the United States.
Here we stayed a week, bathing and fishing. Palm Beach was the best place on the trip for pleasure and siting. Miami was our next objective and here we are now in the greatest city of the South. We have nice rooms at the Paramount hotel, which is located at 13th street and Avenue C. We like Miami and will be here for the rest of the winter."

"Referring again to the trip southward Billy says:
"On our way down we had good roads through Pennsylvania, Maryland, the District of Columbia, and part of Virginia and bad roads in North Carolina and very bad in South Carolina. They were good all through Georgia but in Montgomery county only did we travel easy in Alabama.
Northern Florida, as far as Polkton, was bad; then good all the way to Miami.

"In the Carolinas we passed through hundreds of acres of cotton in full bloom. They told us much of it would never be picked because it would cost more than the producer can get for it. And yet they pay negroes only 75 cents to a dollar a day and hundreds of them can't get work at that rate. One plantation man said he felt blue at the fire to his fields and burning the cotton.

"Many of the cotton men would not sell at the price was up to 10 cents.
Now they will sell it at any price.
I saw a lot of cotton, 85 for cotton 85 for cotton. The war is at its end."

"The price of the cotton men would not sell at the price was up to 10 cents.
Now they will sell it at any price.
I saw a lot of cotton, 85 for cotton 85 for cotton. The war is at its end."

TEN ROUND FISTIC MATCH AND BASKETBALL GAME ARE SPORT FEATURES TONIGHT

Light Heavyweights Will Battle
on West Side; Legion Teams to Play.

CROUSE MEETS JACKSON

Slavish ball, of the West Side, will be a mecca for fight fans of this vicinity tonight. The followers of things pugilistic are anxiously awaiting the opening of the Fayette Athletic club doors, to see the famed tuck Crouse of Pittsburgh and Kid Jackson, "The Algerian," in the biggest boxing event ever arranged to take place in this section of the county. The two big fellows are booked to travel 10 rounds. While no decision can be rendered, the encounter will not go the full distance, so claim boxing experts. Who will score the key punch is an even choice, and the wise birds figure that the pace Crouse and Jackson will set will depend on the winner who is the bristliest of the pair.

Important as the star bout is, the semi-final bouts are just as attractive. This will bring together the Washington Gun Club of Erie and the heavy-lifting Frank Perry of Pittsburgh. Fans of the Pittsburgh district claim that Frank will soon put his famous brother in the discard, by scoring more knockouts than Jack. The opening bout of six rounds will show two rip-tearing little men in Young Jambish of the Northside and Vic Borg, Jewish of the boy who hung the crepe on Young Cullen at one of the local shows.

It is evident that the business men of this region got the opportunity to witness such a great fistic treat as has been arranged, and they do not want to take this opportunity to see one of the best shows ever carded here. On account of the heavy demand for seat reservations, the free list will positively be suspended. A small number of choice seats are still on sale at the West Penn Billiard parlors and at Tony Rindine's place. They will be retained there until 7 o'clock this evening. The doors will open at 7:30 o'clock and the first bout will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock. Johnny Stoker of Everson will referee all the bouts.

CLASH BETWEEN TEAMS OF RIVAL TOWNS TONIGHT

The clash between old rivals, Conneltsville and Uniontown, takes place tonight at the armory. The American Legion quintets from both places will be the principals. The game, scheduled to start at 8 o'clock sharp, Uniontown is bringing a big bunch of rooters along.

RAIDERS WIN OVER THE WONDERS IN "A" LEAGUE

The Raiders defeated the Wonders, 15-6, in a game at the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The contest was slow, with close guarding resulting in few field goals. A game between the Raiders and Terrers was scheduled for this afternoon.

The high school team goes to Turbot Creek tonight where the Union High, a member of the W. P. I. A. league, will be played.

And her league games will be at Scottdale. North Braddock will be there.

Dunbar Township plays the South Lanesville team tonight at Lanesville.

The fight for honors in the third section of the W. P. I. A. league, of which the Cokers are members, is closer than in any of the other five divisions.

The Uniontown Collegiates play the Y. M. C. A. Juniors here tonight, at 7:30 o'clock. Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 the Scottdale "Y" Juniors play here.

MUCKS' LOSS WAS BIG BLOW

Big Wisconsin Star Was Injured Just Before Commencement of Olympic Games at Antwerp.

Take a look at this whale of a man. It is a picture of Arlie Mucks, the great Wisconsin star who has started the country with his weight and discs throwing records.

Of course he was selected to make the trip to Antwerp and pull down a few medals.

few days for the Yankee team that finally emerged victorious from the contest.

Just as certain he was a victim of injuries, and the many of the real stars of the team, was obliged to withdraw even before it started on its overseas journey.

Many of the others were rendered unfit on the scene of action and before their great ability had opportunity to show and to make itself felt for the good of Uncle Sam.

This applies to Jole Ray, Pat McDonald, Matt McGrath, Sol Butler, Walker Smith and to Miss Charlotte Borth of the swimming team.

After withdrawing and making recovery, Mucks tossed the discs a greater distance than any of the Antwerp contestants, even the winner, showing what he could have done had he been able to compete.

SPORT FOR GRID LUMINARIES

Many Football Heroes Play Basketball During Winter—Several Are Quite Proficient.

With the football season over, many stars will now turn their attention to basketball. Many of the gridiron luminaries are also extremely proficient on the court. Dickerson and Legendre of the Princeton eleven are fine basketball players. So are Haines and Killinger of Penn State, Horvath of Harvard, Harris of Columbia, and Anderson of Syracuse.

Graves, Penn's star end, is one of the best centers in the game. Danny McNeil is as good on the court as he is on the gridiron. Brown of Dartmouth is good in both sports and Grano of Yale is another who can play both games well. Shore of the Army, a good tackle, is a capable center. Roto and Wilson of Lehigh, both fine football performers, are strong basketball players, while Eren, McKee and Walters of the Navy are helping out the basketball team.

FOOTBALL UPKEEP IS LARGE

During Season Just Closed It Cost Harvard $40,847.81 to Develop Its Gridiron Team.

It costs a lot to develop a football team. This item rung the Harvard cash register for $40,847.81 during the year just closed. This includes the trip to the coast for the Oregon game. The Crimson athletic fund shows a deficit of $3,000.

THE SOISSON.

"THE FORBIDDEN THING" A big production, in which James Kirkwood, Helen Jerome Eddy, King Baggot and other well known stars are seen in splendid roles, is one of the best pictures shown at this theatre for some time. It will also be the attraction tomorrow. The first of the picture characters are tangled into an almost unresolvable skein and that, of course, makes you eager to see how it is going to come out. The picture is expertly directed and contains plenty of fine photography. Mr. Kirkwood is seen in a role that shows his ability to the best advantage. He portrays the role of Allan Blake, a descendant of a Puritan family. Blake is in love with Joan, a domestic maid, when she is called away by the illness of her father. Blake, becoming homesick, wanders off from his home and meets some of his male friends. While at a dancing hall he meets a Portuguese woman, of loose morals. Later he marries her. She becomes tired of Blake and elopes with a circus man, Joan, although heartbroken, marries another man, but later she and Blake are reunited.

A selected comedy is also included.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"PAY ME" A gripping photoplay in which Dorothy Phillips is seen in one of the best roles of her career, is today's feature attraction and will also be shown tomorrow. A selected comedy is also included. Among the leading attractions of this theatre are "Crown Kate," featuring Alice Joyce, "Love Cody in 'Occasionally Yours,'" and Pauline Frederick in "A Slave of Vanity." A feature in connection with the regular program is music by Dranks' orchestra.

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE CITY OF MASKS" Starring Robert Warwick, the little star, supported by an all-star cast, is being shown today and will also be the attraction tomorrow. The plot is built up around the novel idea that there are hundreds of men and women in New York concealing the fact that they are of noble birth by assuming humble positions as chauffeurs, governesses and the like. Once a week they meet at a certain hour and assume their rightful identities for the evening. Robert Warwick, as Tommy Trotter, chauffeur to the wealthy Mr. Carpenter, is really an English lord in disguise. He is in love with Miss Burdette, who is not really the governess, she pretends to be, but a noblewoman. Their romance is threatened by the haughty son of a nouveau riche New York family, and only after several adventures, including a battle with big city politics, are their efforts ended happily. "The City of Masks" is declared to be an unusually telling choice as a vehicle for Robert Warwick, Lois Wilson is the leading woman, and the cast includes Theodore Kosloff and J. M. Dumont. Thomas Jefferson directed the picture. It is a Paramount Artcraft release.

WHEN NATURE COLORS THE CHEEKS

She Applies It From Within, Not From Outside.

Pepto-Mangan, Nature's Beautifier.

It is the Coloring Matter of Pure Blood That Makes a Good Complexion.

Beauty is more than skin deep. No one can have a clear, delicate skin, glowing with health, if the blood is impure or lacking in the vitality necessary to give the coloring matter to the "life fluid." Segues of color and necessary waste elimination, helps to render the blood pure and healthy, and thus its iron content. The best remedy in the world is pure, healthy, iron-rich blood.

Doctors, realizing the importance of enriching and improving the blood, have for years prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the pleasant and proved blood builder and tonic.

Pepto-Mangan contains just the elements needed to change that watery blood to good, red blood. Pepto-Mangan builds rich, red blood, enabling it to carry strength and vigor to every part of the body.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan has become so well known, by reason of doctors recommending it, that you can get it in tablet or liquid form at any drug store. Instead of trying to cover up a poor complexion, get a bottle of Gude's Pepto-Mangan and soon you will feel better, sleep better, work harder, play with more zest, and have your skin and complexion are improved.

Only make sure to get the genuine. It has "Gude's" on the package. ADV.

The Voice of the Pack

BY EDISON MARSHALL

(Copyright, 1920, Little, Brown & Company)

But the eyes had already blinked at before she could raise the weapon.

She Shot Twice.

She shot twice. The echoes roared back, unbelievably loud in the silence, and then abruptly died, and the only sound was a rustling of leaves as the cougar crouched. She sobbed once, then hurried on.

She was afraid to listen at first. She wanted to believe that her pistol fire would frighten the animal from her trail. She knew, under ordinary conditions, that it would. If he still followed, it could mean but one thing—that some unheard-of incident had occurred to destroy his fear of men. It would mean that he had knowingly exposed her trail and was hunting her with all the age-old remorselessness that is the code of the mountains.

For a little while all was silence. Then out of the bushes the thickets suddenly crashed and shook on the opposite side of the trail. She fled blindly into the thicket. Then she caught herself with a sob. But two shells remained in her pistol, and they must be saved for the test.

Whisperfoot, the cougar, remembered the lessons of his youth, turned from the trail when he had first heard Snowbird's step. He had crouched and let her pass. She was walking into the wind; and as she was at the closest point a message had blown back to him.

The hair went straight on his shoulders and along his spine. His blood, running cold an instant before from fear, made a great leap in his veins. A picture came in his dark mind: the chase for a deer when the moon had set the slit of a living thing that broke twice in the thickets, and the lion he had made. There had been blood, that night—the wildness and the madness and the exultation of the kill. Of course there had been terror first, but the terror had soon departed and left something being wanted and still in the thickets. It was the same game that walked his trail in front—game that died justly and yet, in a yugene way, he did not understand the hidden game of all. It was living flesh, to tear with teeth and fangs.

All his training, all the instincts inherited in him by a thousand generations of cougars who knew this greatest fear, were simply obliterated by the sudden glimpse of his hunting-friend. He had seen this blood once, and it could never be forgotten. The blood leaped in his eyes. And then he began the stalk.

A cougar, trying to creep silently on its game, does not move quickly. It slinks, slinks, as a serpent steals through the grass. Whisperfoot stalked for a period of five minutes, to learn that the prey was further away from him to every step.

He trotted forward until he came close, and again he stalked. Again he stalked, after a few minutes of silent creeping through the thickets, that he had lost distance. Evidently this game did not feed slowly, like the deer. It was to be a chase, then. Again he crept within one hundred feet of the girl.

Three times more he tried to stalk before he finally gave it up altogether. This game was like the porcupine—simply to be chased down and taken. And in the case of all animals, that hunt their game by overtaking it, there was no longer any occasion for going stealthily. The thing to do was to come close and spring from the trail behind.

Though the fear was mostly gone, the cougar retained enough of that caution that most wild animals ex-

Three Bottles Brought His Appetite Back. Made Him Sleep Good Again.

HAS MORE STRENGTH

"My father, aged 87 years, suffers from a general breakdown in health and catarrh. He had lost his appetite, had a third feeling, could not sleep at night, had trouble with his kidneys, had no ambition to move around the house, at all, couldn't walk any distance and was constipated.

"I bought my father some Hypo-Cod after reading in so many papers where people were being relieved of their troubles by using it, and since he has taken it he says: 'I began to feel like a new person after taking two bottles. My appetite came back. I can sleep better at night, walk up a hill now without feeling any bad effects, I notice a big improvement all around and feel as young as I did when I went to the front in '61."

"I recommend Hypo-Cod because it has done so much for me and will gladly give anyone information about Hypo-Cod in a personal letter," wrote James Clark, R. F. D. No. 2, Box 55, Gibesville, Sample Station, Pa.

When a person is away down at a low ebb it takes a powerful medicine to do the work quick. It must be powerful and it mustn't disagree with a weak stomach. That is why Earle's Hypo-Cod does the work so nicely. It is powerful and it tastes so nice and agrees with a weak stomach so nice that even children love it—so if the reader knows of a friend who needs something to build up with let them recommend this newer, more modern and powerful triumph of modern day chemistry.

hibit when hunting a new game so that he didn't attempt to strike Snowbird down at once. But as the chase went on, his passion grew upon him. Ever he crept nearer. And at last he sprang full into the thickets beside her.

At that instant, she had shot for the first time. Because the light had left his eyes before she could find him, the shot had been clean miss. And terrible as the reports were, he was too engrossed in the chase to be frightened away by mere sound. This was the cry the man-pack always made—these sudden, startling sounds in the silence. But he felt no pain. He crouched a moment, shivering. Then he bounded on again.

The third shot was a miss too; in fact, there had been no chance for a hit. A sound in the darkness is as unreliable a target as a possibly he imagined. And it didn't frighten him as much as the others. He waited, crouching, and the girl started on.

She was making other sounds now—queer, whimpering sounds not greatly different from the bleat that the fawn utters when it dies. It was a fear-sound, and if there is one emotion with which the wild beasts are acquainted, in all its phases, it is fear. She was afraid of him, then, and that meant he need no longer be in the least afraid of her. His skin began to twitch all over with that terrible madness and passion of the bush-hunters.

This game was like the deer, and the thing to do was to wait. There was only one trail. He wasn't afraid of losing her in the darkness. She was neither fast like the deer nor courageous like Wolf the bear. He had only to wait and leap from the darkness when she passed.

When Dan Felling, riding like mad over the mountain trail, heard the third shot from Snowbird's pistol, he felt that one of the debts he owed had come due at last. He seemed to know, as the darkness pressed around him, that he was to be tried in the fire. And the horse sniggered, beneath him as he tried to hasten.

He showed no mercy to his mount. Horse-flesh isn't made for carrying a heavy man over such a trail as this, and she was red-nosed and lathered before half a mile had been covered. He made her leap up the rocks, and on fairly level stretches he tossed the reins and lashed her into a gallop. Only a mountain horse could have stood that test. He gave no thought to his own safety. His courage was at the test, and no risk of his own life must interfere with his attempt to save Snowbird from the danger that threatened her. He didn't know when the horse would fall with him, and precipitate him down a precipice, and he was perfectly aware that to crash into a low-hanging limb of one of the great trees beside the trail would probably crush his skull. But he took the chance. And before the ride was done he found himself pleading with the horse, even as he lashed her sides with his whip.

The lesser forest creatures sprang from his trail; and once the mare leaped high to miss a dark shadow that crossed in front. As she caught her stride, Dan heard a squeal and a rattle of quills that identified the creature as a porcupine.

By now he had passed the first of the worst grades, coming up upon long, easy slope of open forest. Again he urged his horse, leaving to her keen senses alone the choosing of the path between the great tree trunks.

Then he heard Snowbird fire for the fourth time; and he knew that he had almost overtaken her. The report seemed to smash the air. And he lashed his horse into the fastest run she knew—a wild, sobbing figure in the darkness.

"She's only got one shot more," he said. He knew how many bullets her pistol carried; and the danger—what ever it was—must be just at hand. Underbrush cracked beneath him. And then the horse drew up with a jerk that almost hurled him from the saddle.

He lashed at her in vain. She was not afraid in the darkness and the rocks of the trail, but some terror in the woods in front had in an instant broken his control over her. She reared, snorting; then danced in an impatient circle. Meanwhile, precious seconds were fleeing.

He understood now. The horse stood still, shivering beneath him, but would not advance a step. The silence deepened. Somewhere in the darkness before him a great cougar was waiting by the trail, and Snowbird, hoping for the moment that it had given up the chase, was hastening through the shadows squarely into its ambush.

Whisperfoot crouched lower; and again his long serpent of a tail began the little vertical motion that always precedes his leap. He had not forgotten the wild capture of that moment he had inadvertently sprung on Lendy Bludren—or how, after his terror had died, he had come creeping back, he hunted his own way, waiting on the trail; and his madness was at its height. He was not just Whisperfoot the coward that runs at the shadow of a tall form in the thickets. The consummation was complete, and that single experience of a month before had made of him a hunter of men. His muscles set for the leap.

So intent was he that his keen senses didn't detect the fact that there was a curious echo in the girl's footsteps. Dan Felling had slipped down from his terrified horse and was vaulting up the trail behind her, praying that he could be in time.

Snowbird heard the pat, pat of his feet; but at first she did not dare to hope that aid had come to her. She had thought of Dan as on the far-away marshes and her father, the only other living occupant of this part of the Divide, might even now be lying dead in his house. In her terror, she had lost all power of interpretation of events. The sound might be the cougar's mate, or even the wolf pack, jealous of his game. Soaring, she hurried on into Whisperfoot's ambush.

Then she heard a voice, and it seemed to be calling to her. Snowbird—I'm coming. Snowbird—I'm coming. The voice was shouting. She whirled with a sob of thankfulness.

At that instant the cougar sprang. Terrified though she was, Snowbird's reflexes had kept sure and true. Even as the great cat leaped, a long, little shadow out of the shadow, her finger pressed back against the trigger of her pistol. She had been crying, but her gun in front of her, and she fired it, this last time, with no conscious effort. It was just a last, instinctive effort to defend herself.

One other element affected the issue. She had whirled to answer Dan's cry just as the cougar left the ground. But she had still been in range. The only effect was to lessen, in some degree, the accuracy of the spring. The bullet caught the beast in mid-air, but even if it had reached its heart, the momentum of the attack was too great to be completely overcome. Snowbird only knew that some vast, resistless power had struck her, and that the darkness seemed to roar and explode about her.

Hurled to her face in the trail, she did not see the cougar sprawl on the earth beside her. The flame in the lantern almost blazed out as it fell from her hand, then flashed up and down the deeper, gloom to a vivid glare with something of the effect of lightning flickering in the sky. Nor did she hear the first frenzied thrashing of the wounded animal. Kindly unconsciousness had fallen, obscuring this and also the sight of the great cat in the agony of its wound, creeping with broken shudder and bare claws across the pine needles toward her defenseless body.

But the terrible fangs were never to know her white flesh. Some one had come between. There was no chance to shoot; Whisperfoot and the girl were too near together for that. But one course remained; and there was not even time to count the cost. In this most terrible moment of Dan Felling's life, there was not even an instant's hesitation. He did not know that Whisperfoot was wounded. He saw the beast creeping forward in the weird dancing light of the fallen lantern, and he only knew that his flesh, not hers, must resist its rending talons. Nothing else mattered. No other consideration could come between.

Keeping the gums healthy and the mouth sweet is very important to health; more teeth are lost through the loosening of the tissue that holds the tooth in place than from decay.

Dental science to-day demands that a tooth paste must keep the gums healthy as well as clean the teeth. Senreco was formulated to meet this requirement. Hundreds of dentists are prescribing and using Senreco because they have found that it does measure up to that standard.

SENRECO IS A WONDERFUL CLEANSER.

In addition to its remedial properties Senreco is a wonderful cleanser; acts directly on the mouth film, the basis of tartar; leaves the mouth cool and clean-feeling. As some one has expressed it—Senreco gives one a new idea on mouth cleanliness.

Get a tube to-day at your druggists or toilet counter—enjoy the healthy, cleanly feeling its use gives your mouth and gums. Notice how brilliant white Senreco makes your teeth. It performs this two-fold service for you and yet costs no more than the ordinary, old-fashioned tooth paste that simply cleans the teeth and leaves a pleasant taste.
